TABULAR PRESENTATIONS.

I. Domestic and Agricultural Products, by Towns, . . 1–255

Each article of Domestic and Agricultural Products specified by name, in a statement for each Town and City, with aggregates for each Town and City. Quantity and value for sale, and quantity and value for use given in the case of Domestic Products, and quantity and value for Agricultural Products. Followed by a Town and City, and County and State recapitulation.

II. Domestic and Agricultural Products, by Name, . . . 257–410

Presentations of the principal Domestic and Agricultural Products, giving for each the quantity and value in each Town, City, County, and for the State. Followed by a State recapitulation, stating the quantity, value and average value of every article produced of which returns were made, with specifications, in some cases, of acreage and average yield per acre.

VOLUME III.

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS AND PROPERTY.

INTRODUCTION.

This volume contains the tabulated returns relating to Domestic Manufactures, Agricultural Products, Farms and Farm Property, Domestic Animals on Farms, Persons Employed in Agriculture, their wages, value of implements, etc., Mines, Quarries, Pits and Fish Ponds; and it should be distinctly understood at the outset in this volume that no agricultural products are considered except those from farms. The Census took no account of city or village lots or houses, or the products of small house gardens, or of animals not on farms, although for general information the tables in the Appendix will be found to contain the number of all horses, cows and sheep in the State, including those not on farms; but these figures have been derived from the returns of the assessors to the Secretary of State.

The facts presented are for all products during the year ending May 1, 1875, and as to all other matters of property or fixed things, as they existed May 1, 1875.

We shall give in this special introduction a brief analysis of all presentations and tables contained in the third volume, Census of Massachusetts, on the plan adopted in Volumes I. and II. The methods of taking the Census of 1875 have been given in the General Introduction to Volume I., and need not be repeated here, beyond the statement that to bring out the required information on the points stated above, the Products and Property Schedule, containing forty-three inquiries, was used, and a separate Schedule for every farm in the State, certified to by the proprietor or the enumerator, was filed in this office; while the enumerator also filed a certificate giving the address of all proprietors of farms who positively declined to give to the State the facts called for. Of this latter class there are about fifty in the whole State; but their farms, as a rule, were so insignificant, the office did not feel warranted in taking legal steps to enforce the inquiries, for the grand results are neither vitiated nor perceptibly lessened by their obstinacy. It will readily be seen that our statements as to the number of farms are absolutely correct in one respect at least: the number is no less than that given; there may be, and probably are, a very few more. The amount and value of products, if not correct, are the results of the certified statements of the producers themselves; and from all the collateral evidence we have been able to gather, we believe the total amount of farm products, as stated in this volume, does not vary ten per cent from the positive facts; and the amounts of products stated are, of course, less rather than more than the truth.

The great question, so far as the products of the soil are concerned, and the one of most vital interest in this respect to the people of this State, is, whether Massachusetts is on the decline as to her agricultural pursuits. In general terms, the agriculture of the State holds its position in spite of the losses in small agricultural districts as shown by the Census. Loss of population does not by any means indicate a loss of production; for, as in manufactures, one weaver in a cotton mill now represents ten yards of cloth per day instead of three yards twenty years ago, so in agriculture, less area cultivated and less hands employed represent a larger yield as a rule, than under the conditions existing ten or twenty years ago. We believe agriculture is not on the decline. The question will, however, be answered by facts and figures in detail as the various showings may indicate.

Domestic and Agricultural Products, by Towns, is the first presentation, covering pages 1 to 255, and showing the quantity and value of domestic products for sale and for use, and the purely agricultural products for each town or city in the State. Each town is presented as an entirety, so that the reader can tell at a glance the products of a town, not only in detail, but in aggregate. By domestic products is meant such articles as are manufactured on the farm,—"home-made" productions, like butter, cider, dried fruits, firewood, carpets, etc. The returns relating to the quantity and value of such products for use are probably the least reliable of any considered in this volume, except, perhaps, for mines, quarries and pits, although they amount to the goodly sum of $2,135,954, and for sale to $4,942,050, or a total value of domestic manufactures on farms alone of $7,078,004 currency. In 1865, this class of products amounted to $5,774,597 currency. We have reported everything that was returned, even to a pair of shoes or of mittens, regretting only that all the results of household manufactures can not be given, but feeling gratified at the same time, that in so difficult a branch of the Census so much has been done, and the exhibit is as complete as we find it.

Great care has been taken in the presentation of the purely agricultural products to correct all inherent errors, especially in the relation of values to quantity, and to this end much research and investigation have been undertaken, and with the best of results. Occasionally it may be found that the quantity of grain, potatoes or other product is out of proportion to the value; but this, if it occurs at all, is either explainable by peculiar local influences, or by some extra quality, or else it is error. For instance, the value of apples in some towns in the State, as given, bears no relation to the values given in other towns; but the value given by the producer was that realized, and that depends not only upon the time of year he disposed of his apples, but their kind and quality. Two dollars per bushel for some kinds of apples might seem high, and yet the report be true. A town may raise principally apples of some extra grade, while the apple crop of another town might be in cider apples of little value. Again, in the examination of the milk yield: in a few towns the price will be found to be as low as six or eight cents per gallon, a figure much too low, and which calls for special reasons, and they are found in the fact that the milk crop as reported includes skimmed milk sold by the producer at low rates for special purposes; this, of course, in a few instances operates to bring down the average for such localities, and affects, to a slight degree, the general average for the State. So in all other products, variations will be found in comparing one town with another.

This presentation gives the towns, arranged alphabetically by counties, and simply states quantity and value; it closes with a recapitulation of aggregates by towns (page 249) and a recapitulation by counties (page 255), from which it is found that the total domestic products reached $7,078,004, as stated, and the purely agricultural products $34,443,795; total domestic and agricultural products of the farms of Massachusetts for year ending May 1, 1875, $41,521,799. These values are currency; in gold they are respectively $6,319,646, $30,753,388 and $37,073,034. In 1865, they were, in gold: domestic products, $3,678,087; agricultural products, $28,349,734, — total domestic and agricultural products, $32,027,821, a gain over 1865 of $5,045,213, or nearly 16 per cent.

In agricultural products, 1875, Worcester County leads the State, returning $6,960,777 worth; Middlesex comes near to Worcester, producing $6,272,089 worth; Hampshire ranks third, $3,066,883; Essex, fourth, $2,974,659; Berkshire, fifth, $2,794,545; Hampden, sixth, $2,774,297; Franklin, seventh, $2,593,738; Bristol, eighth, $2,411,305; Norfolk, ninth, $1,696,338; Plymouth, tenth, $1,646,260; Barnstable, eleventh, $547,613; Suffolk, twelfth, $473,630; Dukes, thirteenth, $135,022; Nantucket, fourteenth, $96,639.

Domestic and Agricultural Products, by Name, presents each specific product and those towns only in which it is produced; for instance, under the first caption, Bark, only those towns in which bark is produced are given.

The arrangement of this chapter is such as to show the domestic products by quantity and value, in alphabetical order, from pages 259–309, where lumber and railroad sleepers are given out of order, they requiring a change in form of table.

Agricultural products, for which no acreage is given, are presented on page 312, extending to page 360 in order, and from pages 360–406 are given in order those products for which acreage is presented. This presentation embraces only the chief products, but in the recapitulation of domestic products by name (pages 407, 408), every product returned is given by name, quantity and value, with average value; and on pages 408–410, agricultural products having no acreage, and on page 410, those having acreage, with average value. In this last item, the average value, is found the severest test of the correctness of the returns; for, in nearly every instance, so far as important crops are concerned, the average value is substantially that of the market, 1874–5. The remarks on the preceding presentation, as to the relation of quantity to value, apply of course to the same features in this. We have no returns of crops or products designated as unspecified. The instructions to the enumerators were explicit in this direction, and they faithfully accounted for all products of farms, as given them, under proper designations, thereby avoiding what has been heretofore a very unsatisfactory item in the statistics of productions.

Following is a table showing the quantity, value, average value and acreage when given, of the chief products of the State for 1845, 1855, 1865 and 1875:—

Principal Products for 1845, 1855, 1865 and 1875.

[The returns in 1865 included "other esculent vegetables" with beets, and in 1845 and 1855 they included "poultry" with eggs and "eggs" with poultry; in 1865, also, "tomato plants" were included with tomatoes.]

In the foregoing table we have the true basis of comparison, quantity, and when it applies, acreage; the values are interesting as indicating the value of same quantity at different periods. For 1845 and 1855 gold was the standard, and of course for 1865 and 1875 the values should be reduced to a gold basis; this is done by dividing the currency value for 1865 by 1.57, and for 1875 by 1.12. The table just given shows only the chief products, and principally those where comparisons could be made for some or all of the years named. Very many products returned in 1875 found no place in former censuses, and are not mentioned in the table.

Much can be drawn from the foregoing table; it teaches the changes in crops, in value, in acreage, in average yield per acre, and the increase or decrease in the leading crops; the result is gratifying in many respects, for while it is seen that there is a loss in the great staple products of barley, corn, oats, potatoes and wheat, there is for each of these crops an increased yield per acre; the lighter crops, beans, beets, carrots, cranberries, onions and turnips, show large increase generally, not only in amount raised, but in yield per acre; the hay crop has increased in quantity and in average yield per acre.

The item of cheese in the foregoing table includes for 1875 that made upon farms only, while for the other years it comprises the total product of cheese, not only on farms, but from factories. The total product of cheese for 1875 was 3,067,017 pounds; valued at $405,293.

The egg and milk products exhibit wonderful progress, the latter growing from 2,850,412 gallons in 1845 and 10,079,180 gallons in 1865 to 35,698,159 gallons in 1875. Accompanying the great increase in the milk product will be noticed the decrease in the beef product, dropping from 70,825,396 pounds in 1865 to 12,258,542 pounds in 1875.

Tobacco loses, many farmers, during the past five years, having abandoned it as a crop. Raising small fruits, pears, etc., will be found to occupy considerable attention now, and their product has been returned for 1875, but there are no statistics for former years with which comparison can be made.

An examination of the relation of quantities raised to acres tilled convinces one that the farmers of Massachusetts have learned the important lesson of tilling less land and tilling it better, for we find that even in the crops where loss in the aggregate occurs there has been a great improvement in results. In 1855 it took 4,971½ acres to produce 99,430 bushels of barley; and in 1865, 7,103¾ acres to produce 138,524 bushels; while in 1875 it took but 1,828⅜ acres to produce 46,884 bushels; an increase in the average yield from 20 bushels to 25½ bushels to the acre. The beet crop increased from 193½ to 244⅝ bushels per acre, from 1865 to 1875. The product of corn per acre grew from 28¾ bushels in 1865 to 35¾ bushels in 1875. Onions, an important product, made an increase in quantity per acre, and the average yield of oats per acre increased from 21⅛ bushels in 1855 to 31¼ bushels in 1875; and potatoes from 91 bushels per acre in 1865 to 108 in 1875; and wheat from 15¾ in 1855 to 20⅓ in 1875.

The agriculture of Massachusetts can hardly be said to be on the decline with the facts before us; and the only statement which can tempt one to such belief is the superficial one relative to what has been considered the important crops. It must be conceded, however, that the important crop is the one which soonest and surest brings substantial returns to the farmer, and if milk, eggs or small fruits, or the leading fruits, will do this, then they become the important crops. It is the province of another department, whose secretary is much more able than we, to discuss these matters, and we gladly leave it to him, although the temptation to rebuke the cry of decline is exceedingly strong.

Farm Property, by Towns (pages 411–605) presents the farms classified as under 3 acres, from 3 to 5, from 5 to 10 and above 10 acres, with value, the farm buildings classified and total values, the land classified and values, fruit trees and vines, and domestic animals on farms, by name, for each city and town, with an aggregated statement for each. On pages 606–617 will be found a recapitulation of all farm property by towns arranged as to counties, and supplemented on pages 616, 617 with a county recapitulation. [In the town of Egremont (page 423), 3,459 acres of unimprovable land valued at $83,902 should read 3,373 acres of unimproved land valued at $83,172 and 86 acres of unimprovable land valued at $730.] On page 619, and extending to page 695, will be found Farm Property, by Name, in which presentation is shown all the details of the previous divisions under their appropriate heads, as farms, buildings, land, fruit trees and vines, and domestic animals, with the quantity and value of each, for every city and town. These two presentations, farm property by towns and by name, we shall consider together. The first gives at a glance all the facts for every town, while the second gives all the facts properly classified and together for every class of property, following the plan of the first and second presentations in this volume as to domestic and agricultural products, and the plan of presenting the manufactures of the State as exhibited in Volume II. To be more specific: in Farm Property, by Name, each article forms a heading by itself, and under it is given the towns only in which that article exists, quantity and value in each instance being stated. From the presentations under consideration, we draw the following table of the number of farms, their acreage, average acreage, total value and average value, by counties.

It should be remembered that the Bureau has a special certificate, as stated, for each and every one of the 44,549 farms in the State, but the question may arise as to what has been considered as constituting a farm. We have considered a farm to be the home of a farmer, his workshop and his means of obtaining a subsistence; this necessitates certain appliances to enable him to carry on successfully the work of the farm; these necessary adjuncts comprise arable soil for crop land; pasture land for stock; woodland for material for fuel, fencing, etc., and all the buildings requisite for housing family, products and animals.

When it is seen, therefore, that for each of the 44,549 farms in the State, there has been returned all or nearly all the essential appliances of a farm, there can be no question as to our classification and definition. For the farms and on the farm schedules, there are returned 43,620 dwelling-houses and 46,848 barns; this, of course, settles the matter as to the State at large: fearing, however, that many of the farm returns from cities might include detached lots not properly coming within the above definition, we separated the city returns from those for the towns, and the result appears in the following statement:—

CITIES.	Farms.	Houses.	Barns.

Total,	2,301	2,214	2,223

This shows that of the 2,301 farms returned in cities, 2,214 had dwellings and 2,223 had barns. It is clear, therefore, that there are 44,549 absolute farms of all sizes in the State. In 1865 the number was 47,014, thus showing a slight loss in 1875, which may be accounted for by aggregations or as the result of a less rigid classification in 1865 compared with that adopted in 1875.

The land of the farms for 1865 and 1875 is divided into four classes, as follows :—

	1865. Acres.	1875. Acres.
Land under crops,	881,402	912,521
Unimproved land,	1,052,374¾	1,469,988⅛
Unimprovable land,	282,359	89,457¼
Woodland,	1,019,343⅝	930,402½
Total,	3,235,479⅜	3,402,368⅞

By Land under Crops is meant all land from which any crop, including hay, was harvested during the years ending on the first day of May, 1865 and 1875. Unimproved Land comprises all land devoted to pasturage and other purposes than actual cultivation, and which may be made arable and is capable of improvement other than clearing. By Unimprovable Land is meant that which is absolutely incapable of cultivation. Any classification of this latter kind of land must vary according to the minds of different judges. Woodland includes all that is actually wooded.

This classification must be quite accurate, from the nature of the returns, and it appears satisfactory, also, when judged in relation to the total area of the State, as follows :—

Total area,		4,992,000 acres.
Included in farms, as above,	3,402,368 acres.
in lakes and ponds,	93,000 "
in rivers,	200,000 "
in cities and villages, city and town lots, cemeteries, parish and association lands, etc.,	550,000 "
in 1,837 miles of railroad, including stations,	20,000 "
in 20,000 miles of highways,	140,000 "
in detached and non-resident lands,	81,759 "
in reservoirs,	32,367 "
Total,	4,519,494 acres.

This leaves unaccounted for 472,506 acres. The preceding areas are quite reliable: the area of lakes and ponds is taken from computations by H. F. Walling, Esq.; of rivers, cities, towns, etc., from estimates; of railroads and highways, from computations made from actual returns; of detached and non-resident lands not in farms, and reservoirs, from census returns to this office. The assessors' returns to the Secretary of State show 537,635 acres not taxed May 1, 1875. (See table, page 749, total number of acres taxed, 4,454,365.) It should be remembered that the total area of the State is only a computation, not the result of survey. Most excellent estimates, based on very reliable data, establish the area of the State at 7,800 square miles; and this must be the rule till the State is scientifically surveyed,—an undertaking exceedingly desirable.

That the effect proximity to cities has upon farms and farm lands may be considered, we have prepared four tables, presenting the total acreage and average value per acre of Cultivated Land, Unimproved Land, Unimprovable Land, and Woodland, by counties, including cities, excluding cities, and for the cities alone, and a fifth table, giving all the just mentioned points for the cities by name:—

By the recapitulation (page 695), it appears that the horses on farms number 53,218, the whole number in the State being 129,969. The number of cows on farms, including heifers, 154,091; of milch cows, 126,034. Whole number of cows in State according to assessors' returns and including those not on farms, 148,395. The total value of domestic animals on farms alone is $17,316,381. The total value of fruit trees upon the farms of the State is $4,674,188, apple trees alone numbering 1,861,204, and valued at $3,656,271. The farm land of all kinds is valued at $116,629,849, and the buildings upon the same at $66,033,291, making the total value of the farms in the State, land and buildings, $182,663,140. The aggregate value of the farms, with all their appliances, is shown to be as follows:—

Land,	$116,629,849 00
Buildings,	66,033,291 00
Fruit trees and vines,	4,674,188 00
Domestic animals,	17,316,381 00
Agricultural implements,	5,321,168 00
Total,	$209,974,877 00

The above total represents an actual value in property alone, and does not include any capital employed in the cultivation of the farms. This immense sum produces for market about $42,000,000 worth of products.

The total value of farms, including all kinds of land and buildings, in 1865, was $176,579,965.

The number of sheep killed by dogs during the year ending May 1, 1875, was 1,673, valued at $9,332.

Persons Employed in Agriculture: Wages: Cultivated and Uncultivated Land (pages 697–705), is a short presentation in which the number of farms is stated in juxtaposition to the land, classified under the grand divisions of cultivated and uncultivated, the number of persons employed, and the wages paid them. These points are given for each town, and recapitulated by counties on page 705. The 44,549 farms are divided into 912,521 acres of cultivated and 2,489,847⅞ acres of uncultivated land. The total number of persons employed is 35,488; this number includes only those who have been paid wages for their labor on farms. In Volume I. (page 612), the entire number given as engaged in agriculture is 70,945, but this includes proprietors or owners of farms as well as the farm hands.

Deducting the number of farm hands, 35,488, as returned on the Products and Property Schedules by the proprietors of farms, from the total number of persons engaged in agriculture, as returned by each individual on the Family Schedule, we have 35,457 to represent the proprietors, a perfectly satisfactory result, in consideration of the fact that many proprietors carry on two or more farms each, as shown by the returns, and of the fact, also, of farm hands being returned as engaged upon more than one farm. These results, derived as they are from returns by different people, furnish positive evidence of the general accuracy of the whole work. In 1865, the total number so engaged in agriculture was 68,538, including proprietors.

The total wages paid for farm labor during the last census year was $5,600,919. This, of course, does not in any way represent the time or labor of the proprietors, but has reference to wages paid hired hands only. The wages for previous years have not been reported. An average daily or yearly wage can not be given, with certainty, from the aggregates on page 705, because a farm hand, working perhaps one month for one farmer and another for his neighbor, must, of course, have been reported as a person hired by each proprietor. In busy seasons many hands are hired, and discharged at the close. In a few instances proprietors have been returned as laborers, but these exceptions, while they interfere with the determination of just averages, as stated, do not interfere with the harmony of the general results. The small number of females reported as engaged in agriculture sometimes calls out the expression that farmers' wives should be accounted as so engaged, because they aid the farmer; so does the mechanic's wife aid the mechanic; both should be classed as engaged in housework, as they have been in Volume I.

Mines, Quarries, Pits, etc. (pages 707–723), presents the products indicated by towns and by names. The endeavor has been to make this showing as complete as possible, but it has been difficult to distinguish between rough products of quarries and dressed stone; the latter properly belong in Volume II.,—Manufactures; but yet, the rough product, to some extent, has entered into the showings in Volume II. The total value of the products of quarries, as drawn from the recapitulation on page 723, this volume, is $1,580,553. After a careful elimination of all rough products from the returns given in Volume II., and a thorough sifting of the whole matter, the true products of the quarries of the State for the last census year are found to amount to $2,498,237, as exhibited in the following county table:—

Quarrying.

The total product of quarries in 1865 was, in currency, $704,255; but this figure can not be relied upon, as the returns relating to such matters were meagre. For 1875, they are wanting in those positive elements which characterize the returns of Agricultural Products and Farm Property.

APPENDIX. Table I. (pages 725–749) gives the population, valuation, real, personal, and total farm property, and farm products, products of manufactures and fisheries, and total number of acres of land taxed, by towns, May 1, 1875, from census and assessors' returns. This table has been added that parties possessing this volume only of the census series might have the means of comparison on leading points at hand. The number of horses, cows and sheep, as given in this table, includes all such in the State, those on as well as those not on farms, while in the presentation of Domestic Animals, already considered, only farm animals have been accounted for.

Table II. (pages 750–773) gives the chief facts, by towns, relating to the valuation, products, property, divisions of land, and persons employed in agriculture, for the year ending May 1, 1865. An explanatory note at head of table gives all changes in towns since 1865. In preparing the statement for 1865, those towns which have been changed from one county to another since that date, as shown in the explanatory note, have been given in the counties of which they formed a part in 1875. Column 7 does not include the value of woodland with the respective values for each town, but these values are included in column 8, which gives total values of all kinds of farm property. The facts presented in this table have never been published by towns, the volume entitled "Industry of Massachusetts, 1865," giving only State or county aggregates. All values, it must be remembered, for 1865, are given in currency, and to reduce them to gold should be divided by 1.57. By this, and Table I., Appendix, the total domestic and agricultural products of towns for the years 1865 and 1875 can be compared so far as values are concerned. The aggregates for the State have already been considered. The number of persons employed in agriculture for 1865, as shown by this table, includes both proprietors and farm hands.

Table III. (pages 774–776) exhibits principal Products and Property, by name, for 1865. The preceding remarks, as to values, apply to values stated in this table. The number of farms, as stated on page 776, for 1865, is 47,014. It is evident this number is too large by at least 2,000, from want of a strict classification. A close examination of the matter convinces us that the number of farms in 1865 was about 45,000. There has been no wholesale consolidation since then; the number reported in 1875, as has been stated, was 44,549. The statement of land, 1865 (page 776), is very accurate. The fruit trees given include all in the State, both on and not on farms, while for 1875 only those on farms have been returned; the same is true of Domestic Animals. A large proportion of the fruit trees of the State are to be found in small gardens and orchards not connected with farms.

Tabular Index (pages 777–790) will be found valuable for its alphabetical arrangement of the cities and towns in the State, with the county in which each is located following, as well as for its ordinary value as an index.

The total products for 1875 are shown to be, in currency, as follows:—

Manufactures and fisheries,	$596,415,866 00
Agriculture and mining,	43,461,599 00
Aggregate,	$639,877,465 00
For 1865:—
Manufactures and fisheries,	$444,524,353 00
Agriculture and mining,	51,149,576 00
Aggregate,	$495,673,929 00

These values should be reduced to a gold basis, in both years, in order to be of any service in comparison, as values; of course the only true comparison in products must be by quantity produced, which has been done in the appropriate place. On a gold basis of values the products of the State for 1875 and 1865 were as follows :—

For 1875 :—
Manufactures and fisheries,	$532,514,166 00
Agriculture and mining,	38,804,999 00
Aggregate,	$571,319,165 00
For 1865 :—
Manufactures and fisheries,	$283,136,530 00
Agriculture and mining,	32,579,347 00
Aggregate,	$315,715,877 00

From this it is seen that a gain of $255,603,288, on a gold basis, or 81— per cent, has been made in the productions of the State since 1865. The population increased 30.38 per cent. The proportion of property, real and personal, according to valuation, to products, was as 3 to 1, in 1875 ; in 1865, as 2 to 1.

RECAPITULATIONS OF AGGREGATES.

[Products marked with an asterisk are given in detail by towns on pages 259–406. The totals are the State aggregates drawn from those presentations. The other figures given are also State aggregates for the products mentioned, but are drawn from the presentation of products by towns (pages 3–249), they not being deemed of sufficient importance to receive a more detailed showing. In returning boots, shoes, palm-leaf and straw hats, some towns gave the value of the manufactured articles, while others only reported the amount received for "work on."]

Persons Employed in Agriculture: Wages: Number of Farms and Acres of Cultivated and Uncultivated Land.

BY TOWNS.

PERSONS EMPLOYED, WAGES, Etc.

[This presentation gives the number of farms, of all sizes, in each town, and a division of their land into the two classes of cultivated (meaning actually under crops) and uncultivated. The presentation of persons employed in connection with the wages given can not be made use of to supply an average wage for a person, or for a season or year, because the same person in many cases has been returned by different employers.]

MINES, QUARRIES, PITS, ETC.

BY TOWNS AND NAME.

MINES, QUARRIES, PITS, ETC.

[The statistics contained in this presentation relate to clay pits, fish ponds (private property), gravel pits, marl and muck beds, mines of asbestos, coal, metals, ores and plumbago, peat bogs, quarries of the various kinds of stone, and sand pits. The information given comprehends quantity produced, value of the production, acreage of the mines, quarries, pits, etc., capital invested in working the property, and persons employed. Owing to lack of specification in the returns, in many towns the totals given for the various items will not, when added, equal the town totals. This fact does not, however, invalidate the town figures or the property figures when they are given. Again, owing to the deficiencies in the returns of "quantity produced," the column for the same has been omitted in the recapitulations. The town returns of "quantity produced," when given, are of value.]
